

HUNTINGTON WOODS

Application period is open for monthly teen writing workshop

A Huntington Woods-based nonprofit organization is accepting applications for a monthly writing workshop for teens who want to explore their identities through writing.

The nonprofit, One Earth Writing, is looking for "open-minded individuals with a desire to lead." The sessions are guided by the nonprofit's founder and executive director Lynne Golodner.

The program runs from November through May, and applicants must write a one-page letter explaining why they want to be in the program.

The application is available at <http://oneearthwriting.org/apply/>. Submissions are accepted between until Oct. 10.